PROJECT
The Cavern

TECHNOLOGY INTEGRATOR
The Pyramid Group

The property is a period mansion (circa 1750s) built primarily of stone. The Pyramid Group was brought in to install a new cinema that would replace a previous basement cinema that had become old and outdated. Thanks to a visit to the integrator's showroom, the design and technology requirements were very clear.

The design is a unique environment of faceted panels, excellent acoustics, and image quality, as well as custom lighting and furniture. The layout of the room presented a few challenges, including where to place the speakers, as the position of the door and height restraints between the ceiling and seating meant that they couldn't be placed in the usual position. The Pyramid Group overcame these issues to deliver an immersive experience, while still having the interior design and the forefront of their minds. The 3D faceted panels were laser cut and covered in acoustically transparent fabric to create apertures through which the audio projected, ensuring a completely invisible audio setup to be created.

The finished cinema is a huge success, with the client referring to the experience as "outstanding and beyond expectations."
